GRAIN MARKETS STILL DULL

PROVISIONS YIELD SOME TO ENOR-MOUS SELLING, BUT RECOVER.

Firmness at Liverpool and Reported Decrease in Argentine Offerings Keep Wheat Up Till Late Selling Closed It at 90%c.

Chicago, Jan. 14.-At the close of a dull scalping session in wheat to-day, May Liverpool steadied the market early, but weak Continental cables and selling by the Leiter interests caused marked weakness tically at a standstill, and closed un ed. Provisions showed 214c decline as the result of exceptionally heavy sel

In wheat the Liverpool market shows an opening ¼d decline, but before business commenced here it showed ¼d advance over yesterday's price. That started prices here at an advance of from 1/1c to 1/4c, and as later cablegrams reported continued firmness at Liverpool, the price here kept creeping up by small fractions during the first hour and a half. May opened at 90%@ 10%c, as compared with yesterday's clos-ing price of 30%c. Though the demand was limited, yet offerings were almost totally absent, and by 11 o'clock 90%g3ic was quoted. News from Argentine was not so bearish as yesterday and the lessening of that pressure was of course felt. Private callegrams from Liverpool said that Argentine offerings were decreasing and that market was firmer in consequence, and the tine offerings were decreasing and that market was firmer in consequence, and the Liverpool Corn Trade News in another ca-blegram confirmed the lessened offerings blegram confirmed the lessened offerings from Argentine. One feature of the Argentine news that did not lend any assistance to the buoyancy was the export from there this week of 40,000 bushels, which served as an indiction to the trade that the crop of Argentine had now commenced to move toward the consumers. Chicago receipts were 37 cars, against 18 the same date a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 364 cars, against 33 a week ago, and 285 cars the corresponding day of last year. Total primary receipts were 38,000 bushels, against 259,000 bushels last year. The visible is estimated to show from 750,000 bushels, as to 1,000,000 bushels decrease, against a decrease of 1,400,000 bushels a year ago. The exports from Atlantic seaboard ports were decrease of 1,490,000 bushels a year ago. The exports from Atlantic seaboard ports were equal in wheat and flour to 582,000 bushels. The market had a good deal of encouragement from the liberal exports and ruled strong until receipt of the closing cables, after which time an easier feeling prevailed. Liverpool maintained its early strength, but Paris noted declines in wheat equal to from 1½c per bushel for January to ½c per bushel for March and June, and Antwerp reported 2c per bushel decline in both red winter and Walla Walla. Some inpulry for wheat for export was Some inpulry for wheat for export was advised from New York, but it was said to be at prices below the market. The markets did not begin to feel the full effect of the weak Continental cables until fect of the weak Continental cables until about half an hour from the close, but in the absence of any appearance of anxiety abroad to come after wheat here in any great quantity the feeling became more aggressively bearish. Letter brokers sold wheat when call price was reached, which started liquidation from other sources, and in the last ten minutes of the session the market was very weak. May finally sold to 1963.05% and was at that price at the close. It was reported after the close that yessel room had been chartered for a million bushels of wheat for Letter.

Trade in the corn pit was lignter than vessel room had been chartered for a million bushels of wheat for Leiter.

Trade in the corn pit was lighter than en any previous day of this dull week. Only the narrowest kind of a scalping business was done and price fluctuations kept within ½c. Light receipts and the early firmness of wheat gave the market a firm undertone, which was apparent to the end. May ranged from 29 4c to 29½c and closed unchanged at 29½c.

Oats were quiet, but steady, throughout. There was moderate commission house buying. Selling was scattered. Good cash rales and light receipts helped sustain the market. May ranged from 23½c to 23½c and closed unchanged at 25½a22½c.

Provisions were enlivened by enormous selling of pork, lard and ribs, supposed to be for a Cleveland plunger. The market, however, absorbed the offerings with surprising ease, and though prices yielded some for a time, most of the decline was altimately recovered. Packers were all good buyers. At the close May pork was 24x65c lower at 39.714-623.40. May lard a shade lower at $1.754.77½, and May ribs 21c lower at $1.754.77½, and May ribs 21c lower at $1.756. cars; logs, cars;

New York, Jan. II.—The course of today's stock market was decidedly irregular and somewhat perplexing so far as a perception of the general tone of speculation was concerned. As the day progressed the lack of sustaining power in the strength of special stocks which has been the marked characteristic of the market for several days past came to be more and more felt. The disposition to watch closely for signs of a reaction became more marked and the final hour saw a very general throwing over of holdings by professional traders. There was no special news to account for the break, and it was probably due for the most part to technical conditions. Stocks which have recently been prominent for strength were conspicuous in to-day's break by reason of profittaking. There was a feeling of more or less uneasiness also over the tone of the news from Havana in regard to what is expected, rather than what has happened. The fear that the Spanish government's scheme of reform is on the point of breaking down is coupled with the apprehension that the time is imminent when intervention by the United States to save the island from anarchy will be imperative. The persistent weakness of Sugar, a more or less dominant factor by reason of the volume of trading in it, also helped break the market. The opening strength was due to the somewhat feverish demand for local traction stocks due to special causes and to the execution of a large volume of business orders, especially for investment demand in the gilt-edged railroad stocks. But the profit-taking invited by the advances in special cases only served to Increase the late weakness of stocks which had failed of benefit from the early strength. As a consequence, there was a very general break of about a point, ranging up to over 5 points in Manhattan and over 8 points in Third Avenue. Covering by shorts served to retrieve part of the decline, but net losses of a point or over are frequent all through the list. Money tended to become somewhat easier to-day, without any actual change being made in the quoted rates for call loans. There was a brisk demand, however, for commercial paper, which drove the rates down to a range of 344 per cent for the choice grades. To-morrow's bank statement will show a large increase in the cash holdings.

The bond market was active early in the day, but became less active and reacted slightly in the later dealings.

Dry Goods. New York, Jan. 14.-There is a slow but New York, Jan. 14.—There is a slow but noticeable improvement in the dry goods market. Cotton goods have come into a more extended demand, with the influx of Western and Southern buyers in the market. This demand is well diversified, too, and includes brown goods as well as bleached. The sales are now normal, but there is a distinct gain, which has put heart into the operations of sellers. In the woolen goods division, the day has been fully as lively as vesterday. Ruyers are woolen goods division, the day has been fully as lively as yesterday. Buyers are inspecting the newly opened lines and are seemingly after large quantities. The sales of the new goods are of very fair proportions. Buyers are, of course, anxious to secure bargains and the demand is subject to the conditions brought about by higher prices on wool, and the necessity for keeping the prices of ready made clothing within present limits. But woolen dealers who are willing to conduct business under these conditions can find their time well employed. In detail, staple cottons show no change in price conditions.

Hides Well Sold Up. Wool, Hides and Pelts.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—The Shoe and Leather Review to-morrow will say:
Since January 1, 130,000 hides have been reported sold in our reports. Some buyers place the total sales as high as 200,000. The big packers are now in almost complete control of the situation. They have only small stocks of hides, and in some selections are sold considerably shead of their power to make deliveries. The prices are fully 1½c higher than they were in June, when the intrinsic quality of the hides was ½c at least better than it is to-day. The leather situation is now absolutely controlled by the abnormal cost of hides and the shoe manufacturers have reached a point where they must demand more money for shoes. Hides Well Sold Up.

ATTLE RECEIPTS YESTERDAY FAR

uperiority of the Kansas City Market Plainly Shown-Delegates to the Texas Stockmen's Convention.

Kansas City opens the new year as a cat-tle market just as she left off the old year-full of confidence and growth. The receipts of cattle here yesterday were 2,000 greater than in Chicago, and 2,000 larger than both St. Louis and Omaha's, and within 2,610 as large as the receipts at Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha combined.

San Antonio, Tex., is pretty far away, yet the Kansas City commission men don't propose to give the cattle field there entirely up to St. Louis rivars. At the annual meeting of the Texas Stock Growers' Association, to be held in that city next Tuesday, the following Kansas City delegation will be on hand to look after its interest; George R. Barse, C. T. McCoun, Zeb F. Crider, "Uncle" Henry Stephens, F. W. Flato, Jr., and Eugene Rust.
Colonel T. S. Hutton, Chester A. Snider,

The "White Faces" led the cattle market yesterday. John Smith, of Wabaunsee county, Kas., having here 18 grade Hereford steers of his own feeding that were very smooth and beery. They were 3-year-olds and just the weight for exporters. They averaged 1,413 pounds, and were sold by the Charles Dixon Live Stock Commission Company at $5.00 per cwt., the highest price not only of the day, but for several days. The Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company took them for their export trade.

There was another shipment of fine beeves in yesterday from Matti Bros., Cottonwood Falls, Kas. There were I? Poiled Angus and Shorthorn steers in the lot. They were the tail end of his fall feeding. They were not so smooth as his former shipments, but they were a thick fleshed lot of steers, and very ripe. They averaged 1,655 pounds, and were sold by William Epperson & Co. at 44.90. Swift & Co. got them for their dressed beef trade.

Of the heavy cattle in yesterday, William Harker, of McLouth, Kas., had seventeen steers worthy of more than a passing notice. They were grade Shorthorns, and showed skillful feeding. A little too heavy, but very beefy. They averaged 1,813 pounds, and were sold by Hopkins, Kelly & Co. at $4.50, next to the highest price of the day. A. Meyers took them on an order.

A lot of high grade and pure bred Here-ford bulls came in yesterday from lowa and Illinois—a handsome lot of youngsters— owned by O. H. Nelson. They will be at the yards for several days.

Harry Bowman, McLouth, Kas., has been doing some pretty good feeding. He bought here, August 19, sixty native feeders that averaged 974 pounds, and has fed them since. They were returned yesterday, when they weighed 1,310 pounds, having made a gain of 336 pounds.

Pat Maloney, of Skiddy, Kas., says that Northwest range cattle can be made just as big and heavy as natives. He had here yesterday eighteen Idaho steers that he had been full feeding. He says, after quieting down, they did very well. The lot ho brought in yesterday averaged 1,570 pounds. While taking on flesh well, they were not so smooth as natives. They were sold at $4.72%. AFTER MANY YEARS.

Two Who Were Separated in Life's Dawn Meet in Its

From the Chicago Journal.

Benjamin Milen's jacket pockets al-ways bulged with the shining red apples he took to school for Maggie-pretty Margaret Terrell, with her light brown curls garet Terrell, with her light brown curls and hazel eyes, as sweet as an English lass is bound to be and as merry hearted. Een was a well grown lad of 16 and Maggle was a year younger. But love knocked at a heart in its early May, a half century ago, and the cares of matrimony were often assumed in what we now call childhood. So the boy and girl walked hand in hand from the quaint Kentish school through the tender gloaming, and the future glowed in the colors of trusting hope. Then a boy came on a visit from a neighboring village. A new boy wearing better clothes than Ben had ever seen. He fled to the light of Margaret's eyes as a moth files to a candle and she beamed as innocently and as unconsciously upon him as the candle beams on all who seek its glow. But the youthful lover, who had thought her every smile belonged to him, saw the sky grow sunless and shimmer fade on hill and stream; the music fell. He was too proud to speak, so after a few days of jealous torture he followed the beckoning of the sea.

Margaret thought that her heart was to speak, so after a few days of jealous torture he followed the beckening of the sea.

Margaret thought that her heart was broken when she found that the frank, lcyal, loving friend, the promised husband, had gone away from her in anger, and for a long time she listened for his footsteps returning. Then the years went on swift and ever swifter wings, and after awhile she gave her hand to another with sweet, sound love along with it; from the New World floated vague tidings of Hen Milen as a gallant soldler in the Union army; of his wife, his pretty home in Hoboken; then all was told.

A month or so ago Ben Milen, a widower now, met a little old lady in the streets of New York. She noticed his stare and a pink glow rose to her faded cheeks. "I ber your pardon," said Benjamin, "but I thought I knew you. You wouldn't be likely to know Birchington, in Kent, would you, now, ma'am?—" he paused, bowing deferentially.

The little old lady snzed back at him. "An' I would be likely to know Kent," she answered, "an' I would be likely to know Kent," she answered, "an' I would be likely to know Ben Milen, too, if I happened to see."

She could get no further. Ben gave one

See Could get no further. Ben gave one lock at her widow's cap and clasped her in his arms.

So it was that tricky fate led these paths together again after long years, and in a peaceful home, at 122 Garden street, Hobeken, two happy old people wait together for life's sunset.

Unauthorized by the Testament.

The New Age contains an article of much interest from the pen of Count Tolstoi, in which he gives an explanation of the opinions regarding marriage, and the relations of the sexes, which underlie his story of "The Kreutzer Sonata." The article is a reply in effect to the criticism of Max Nordau that there was a decadent note in that work. It gives, we are told, "a full statement of Tolstoi's views about marriage, denies that the institution is authorized by any statement continued in the New Testament, and is at the same time a scathing exposure of the immorality of modern society, and a powerful and earnest advocacy of purity." No doubt this article will be widely discussed.
